

Chris Tausanovitch, from the Department of Political Science at the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA) is conducting a research study.

Your participation in this research study is voluntary.

Why is this study being done?

This study is being done to understand people's political decisions.

What will happen if I take part in this research study?

If you volunteer to participate in this study, the researcher will ask you to do the following:

- Describe your political views and preferences
- Choose between some hypothetical political candidates
- Provide your demographic information

How long will I be in the research study?

Completing the survey will take a total of about 1 minute of active participation.

Are there any potential risks or discomforts that I can expect from this study?

No.

Are there any potential benefits if I participate?

You will not directly benefit from this research.

The results of the research may help us understand how people make political decisions.

Will information about me and my participation be kept confidential?

You will not be asked for your name, address, or other information that could be used to personally identify you. Any information that is obtained in connection with this study and that can identify you will remain confidential. It will be disclosed only with your permission or as required by law. Your data, including de-identified data may be kept for use in future research.

What are my rights if I take part in this study?

- You can choose whether or not you want to be in this study, and you may withdraw your consent and discontinue participation at any time.

- Whatever decision you make, there will be no penalty to you, and no loss of benefits to which you were otherwise entitled.
- You may refuse to answer any questions that you do not want to answer and still remain in the study.
